Senate, AWS Primaries Billed Today

Primary elections for AWS officials and four student senate posts will be today from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

Polling places will be the Chieftain, the Liberal Arts building, Campion and Bellarmine.

FINAL ELECTIONS for the offices will be Thursday, instead of Friday as previously announced.

An ASSU comptroller is still needed also.

Three candidates are running for president of Associated Women Students.

Eileen Morgan, a junior in English in the School of Education, would like to coordinate the AWS with the ASSU. She favors trimming the number of AWS offices to one or possibly two. She would also like to re-evaluate the duties, obligations and "work out responsibilities between the AWS, the dorm council and the ASSU.

Ann Logan's platform includes "social advancement through Spring luncheons with unique entertainment," as well as a career day and expanded women's intramural programs.

NANCY DUNCAN, whose posters say, "There is a future for women," is a history major in Education who wants the expansion of AWS to involve more campus women.

Nancy Ovenell, Patti Kahler, candidates for AWS vice president, will face each other in the final election. A third candidate, Denise Pressentin, withdrew from the race.

Glen Sterr, Cynthia Whetsell, David Gossett and Kathy Lotzgesell are vying for Senate position No. 5.

Sterr was not available for comment.

Cynthia proposes a re-evaluation of Homecoming to determine its real purpose, work toward a pass-fail in non-major, non-core classes, dropping mandatory class attendance, re-evaluation of scholarships for elected offices and evaluation of the relevance of AWS.

DAVID GOSSETT, a freshman in honors, would like to see a revision of the election system so that all candidates could face the students at once. He also favors the senate's investigation of the possibility of an ombudsman on campus.

Kathy Lotzgesell favors a senatorial committee to interview applicants to faculty committees, and the establishment of a "fully representative (not just club presidents)" committee to re-vamp Homecoming.

Running for senate position no. 6 are Andrew Weisbecher, Jim Benoit and Laura Alonzo. Weisbecher could not be reached.

Laura, a freshman in education, feels the current re-organization of the core requirements, the discussion of pass-fail and the up-dating of Homecoming are important.

BENOIT, a junior education major, wants to bring the senate to the students and make it representative of their problems.

Lindsey Draper, Mike Tardif, Dan Fulwiler and Sue Pepka are contesting senate position no. 7.

Sue, a junior in community services, says,

"I'm tired of complaining so here I am. I've learned to question and investigate and this is most essential."

Draper, a freshman in honors, supports the establishment of an open forum to which students can lodge a complaint.

Fulwiler, a freshman psychology major, said "I have the time to give to the senate, and I am willing to participate."

Tardif, a history junior, said "I'm interested in student government and wanted to get involved in the S.U. community."

THREE CANDIDATES are competing for senate no. 8. They are: Starr Tavenner, Rick Morris and Larry O'Connell.

Starr favors an active senate role in establishing a pass-fail system, elimination of the heavily subsidized Winter Formal and a Spring quarter committee of a broad spectrum of students to re-evaluate Homecoming.

O'Connell wants more relevant speakers, more student voice in faculty choices, more work on student rights and publicity of senate meetings coupled with more convenient hours.

Morris felt he was misrepresented in Thursday's Spectator. He advocates giving students a knowledge of student government so that those now discouraged from participation by lack of knowledge may be aided.

He also feels that S.U.'s goals of supporting Christian ideals and values and "developing an unbiased intelligence in its faculty and students" are incompatible.

In Public and Private:

Minority Policy Scored

S.U.'s newly - announced policy on minority involvement drew criticism on two widely-separated fronts last night — one in a public medium, the other behind closed doors.

In taped commentary carried by KOMO-TV, Don Phelps, a Bellevue Community College administrator, criticized the University's projected decline in central-area involvement as "turning its back on the community in which it lives."

Phelps, a former Seattle Community College official, said he was "disappointed" to see S.U. "abandon her efforts to extend minority services to the community in which she resides."

Fr. Kenneth Baker, S.J., president of S.U., had outlined the new policy last month in a memo to Dr. William Cooley, chairman of the Urban Affairs Committee.

"We are bound in charity to help our brothers," he told Cooley, "but not so that we bankrupt the Institution."

As Phelps taped his criticism yesterday afternoon members of the Urban Affairs Committee were meeting in Xavier Hall.

A source said the members were going to "take up sides" on the University's policy regarding minority students.

A Spectator reporter was asked to leave the meeting room yesterday by Dr. William Cooley, committee chairman. Dr. Cooley told the reporter they did not wish to have the meeting covered and it was "closed."

Last Spec Thursday

Thursday's St. Patrick's Day issue will be the last Spectator publication for this quarter. The paper will re-appear on Tuesday, April 7.

Bob Barr Heads Series

Bob Barr, 20, a history-political science junior from Seattle, has been named chairman of the Modern America Lecture Series for 1970-71.

According to Barr, the lecture series plans "to bring the vibrance of contemporary events to an inner-city campus which finds itself increasingly involved in urban and national problems."

Revolution, Birch Society Provide Speakers' Topics

Two speakers will be on campus this week, Dr. Donald Zoll and Larry Abrahams.

Dr. Zoll, chairman of the department of Philosophy and Classics at the University of Saskatchewan, will speak today at 2 p.m. in Pigott 453 on "The Right of Revolution Reconsid-

Abrahams, Regional Coordinator of the John Birch Society, will speak on "The John Birch Society, Now and the Future" during Thursday's free hour in Pigott Auditorium. His appearance is being sponsored by the Political Union.

Music of Russia To Be Theme of Noon Musicale

The Thalia Symphony, orchestra-in-residence at S.U., will feature Russian chamber music in a noon musicale at 12:15 p.m. tomorrow in the Lemieux Library Auditorium.

Selected works of Tchaikovsky, Borodin, Shostakovich, and other Russian composers will be featured under the direction of Mikael Scheremetiew.

The Thalia Symphony rehearses Tuesday evenings in Pigott Auditorium, performs monthly chamber music programs in the S.U. library, and presents quarterly symphony series in the Greater Seattle area.

Political Union Post Now Open

Filings for Political Union president are now open. Applicants may sign up at the Political Union office on the second floor of the Chieftain, office number 5. They will be notified later for interviews with the Executive Board of the Political Union, who elects the president. Closing date for filing is Friday.

Peace Corps Recruiting

by Marsha Green
Feature Editor

John Rhinehardt, a veteran Peace Corps volunteer, returned to the U.S. to interest other people, particularly college students, in becoming Peace Corps workers.

He will be in the Chieftain this week to offer information and applications to anyone interested in learning more about the Corps.

RHINEHARDT stressed that the Corps is looking for people who have majored in business administration, education, math and science.

"There is also a definite need for people in the technical fields, especially engineers," he said.

Currently 50 to 60 countries are host to Peace Corps volunteers in Latin America, Africa, East Asia, the Pacific and the Mid-East.

THE TWO-YEAR period of service is preceded by a three-month orientation period. Six weeks of training are in the language, history, economics and culture of the host country. The remainder of the training takes place in the host country itself.

Rhinehardt worked in an urban community development in Cali, Colombia.

"My experience was very positive and based on the information that has been gathered, we are making headway . . . the Peace Corps is accomplishing its goals," he said.

In previous years, applicants were required to take a language aptitude test. These tests have since been eliminated. Those interested in joining the Peace Corps can state their preference as to country.

Abortion Law Subject For Professional Panel

A panel discussion, entitled "Abortion and the Law," is being sponsored tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Pigott Auditorium.

Gamma Pi Epsilon organized the panel which will feature comments on the new abortion law and its effect on the various professions.

The Very Rev. Kenneth W. Baker, S.J., President of S.U., will be the chairman of the panel. Dr. Richard Burgiss will present a physician's view of the abortion law.

State Senator Fred Dore will also appear on the panel and will speak about the passage of the abortion bill. A social worker, Mrs. Jean Bennett, will discuss the effects of the bill on the social services. The fifth member of the panel is Fr. Paul Carrengella, professor of theology at St. Thomas Seminary.

Questions will follow the panel.

closed doors

To the Editor:

It should be brought to your readers' attention that several candidates in the coming election are waging their campaign behind closed doors. These campaigns are exploiting the weakness that many humans have for reading "light material" in the bathroom. On almost any floor, one can read promises advocating greater involvement, better communications, and personal encounter with student government and AWS.

I'm not questioning the reading selections available, although I haven't read any "entertaining" campaign promises lately. What I do question is the practicality of engaging a bathroom stall as a campaign bulletin board. The sound judgment displayed by some contenders appears to be a farce.

Really, is this the place to start a political career? Must we determine the outcome of the election on the returns from the "rest room precincts"?

Maybe what this university needs is an open door policy—open the doors and bring the issues and candidates out in the open. With this approach, it might actually be possible to voice some fresh ideas.

P.S. I hope the Spectator has room for this personal outburst. At present, all the popular bulletin boards are booked.

ity is very much alive on this campus, and we were particularly pleased and honored to see such a fine representation of black students present.

toilet rooms

To the Editor:

In several of the toilet rooms on campus, one of the Senatorial candidates, Rick Morris, has posted mimeographed letters stating his platform.

In this letter, he makes several sweeping statements about University policy. In particular, he states that the two goals of the University — upholding Christian ideals and developing an unbiased intelligence in faculty members and students—are incompatible.

I, personally, resent his insinuation that if I uphold Christian ideals I am either biased, unintelligent or both; or that if I am unbiased and intelligent, then I couldn't uphold Christian ideals.

In view of his seeming bias against Christianity and his seeming lack of intelligence in making this statement could it be that Rick Morris is actually upholding Christian ideals after all?

S.U. Chieftain Season Closes With Promise for Next Year

by Pat Hayes
Sports Information Director

The S.U. basketball team ended its season with a record of 15 wins and 10 losses. It was the 20th consecutive year of winning seasons for the Chieftains and the third in three years for Coach Buckwalter.

ALTHOUGH the record was a winning one, it was also a disappointing one. The year started with high hopes as personnel was experienced and talented. However, a couple of early season losses and the necessity for some disciplinary action by Buckwalter late in the year combined to keep Seattle U. from any post-season play.

Coach Buckwalter had to suspend three players: Tom Little, Sam Pierce and Don Edwards, all seniors, for leaving the bench during the Portland U game on February 10th. All were starters, and it forced Buckwalter to find three men who could do the job in the four season ending games.

Leapin' Lou West, three year letterman, was the team leader through the final contests. The team came within an eyelash of winning three of the final four games. West averaged 26 points a game during this stretch.

WHEN LOU left the final game against Weber State, his final game as a Chieftain, the crowd extended him a standing ovation which equalled any ever given a graduating Chieftain. Lou's three-year average was near 16 points a game and he grabbed 831 rebounds in his career.

Coach Buckwalter is traveling the next few weeks looking at basketball players for future Chieftain teams.

BEFORE leaving the Chieftain headman said: "The season was a disappointment. With an experienced squad we expected to do much better. I was pleased with the way the reserves responded when they were given an opportunity to be starters. It was extremely good experience for next year."

"Bucky" added: "We'll miss the rebounding of Lou West, Jim Gardner and Bill Jones. Lou is one of the finest players I've been associated with; an outstanding young man who will do well."

THE SEASON was marked by the long awaited series with the University of Washington Huskies. Fans were enthusiastic over the two-game set and capacity crowds were on hand at both Edmundson Pavilion and the Coliseum. The Huskies won the first game 86 to '78 and the Chieftains took the second 80 to 72.

The Alumni Associations of both schools, in cooperation with the Seattle P-I, sponsored a trophy for the series. Named the Baylor-Houbregs Trophy in honor of Elgin Baylor, S.U. Great, and Bob Houbregs, all time great for the Huskies, each team will have the big cup in their trophy case for six months.

THE WASHINGTON SERIES will again highlight next year's schedule and fans can look forward to many fine college teams meeting the Chieftains during the 1970-1971 season.

TEAM MANAGERS

Spring sports sign up sheets are ready and can be picked up in Room CC 104 or CC 117. They should be filled out and returned by Thurs., March 12.

Spec Sports Searches For Staff Writers

The Spectator Sports Department is desperately searching for staff writers to cover the spring sports scene at S.U.

"As of this issue, we need reporters to cover the golf, tennis, baseball and the intramurals programs," said Art Reis, Spectator Sports Editor.

"WE HAVE asked students for help many times before in the past," Reis said, "but have, as yet, not received any response."

"One or two people can't do it all," he said, "and if we are to give adequate coverage of sports at Seattle U, then we have to have help."

Reis said that the commitment would be very minor, explaining that, at most, the individual reporter would be asked to give six hours per week.

"IF STUDENTS at S.U. really want to know, follow, and read about their teams which play their schedules in the spring sunshine, then it is necessary that some among them donate a few hours to do it."

More information can be obtained by contacting The Spectator by phone (University exts. 593-597) or by visiting the Spec offices on the third floor of the McCusker Building.

"The situation is pretty desperate," Reis concluded, "and any help will certainly be welcomed."

Fr. Sitter Appointed

FR. LEONARD SITTER, S.J.

Fr. Leonard Sitter, S.J., has been appointed director of student activities for the remainder of the 1969-70 academic year.

The appointment, which went into effect last Thursday, was announced by University President The Very Reverend Kenneth Baker, S.J.

Fr. Sitter will fill the post vacated last month when Fr. Patrick Kenny, S.J., was transferred to the Jesuit parish in Missoula, Montana.

Fr. Sitter has served this year as administrative assistant of the Archbishop Connolly Center. There was no immediate announcement as to a replacement for him.

Banquet To Honor Girls

Eight S.U. coeds have been invited to attend the 1970 Matrix Table, a banquet honoring Seattle women of achievement. About 130 University women are invited to the banquet which will be March 31 at 6:30 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Olympic.

Those invited from S.U. are: Patty Hollinger, Carol Mukasa, Kathy Moriarty, Jeannie Mallette, Marie Lynn, Alberta Canada, Julie Saltinelli and Virginia Brooke.

Matrix Table is an annual event sponsored by the Seattle Professional and University Chapters of Theta Sigma Phi, a national women's communications honorary.

Highlight of the evening will be the announcement of the Wheel of Wheels, an honor given to an outstanding Washington coed for her scholastic achievement and campus activity.

Proceeds of the banquet will go to the Lucille Cohen Memorial Scholarship Fund, which annually benefits an incoming freshman woman in the school of communications at the University of Washington.

Letters to the editor should be typed, double spaced and not exceed 150 words in length. Letters must be signed but names may be withheld on request.

Student Rights Group Passes Press Policy

by Kathy McCarty
News Editor

After a final discussion of University responsibility in libel cases, the Student Rights Committee passed its statement on the Spectator at last week's meeting.

THE STATEMENT, drawn up by a subcommittee of professional Seattle journalists, states that "the student press should be free of censorship and advance approval of copy and its editors and managers should be free to develop their own editorial policies and news coverage."

Fr. James King, S.J., of the theology department, held that if the students are totally free, they should be liable for selling their own subscriptions.

HE THOUGHT that the present policy of University responsibility for libel was "having your cake and eating it, too. I call it chicken," he concluded.

A compromise was reached in an amendment which suggested that the advisor or editor "submit questionable articles to legal counsel before publication" to preclude the likelihood of libel.

news briefs

bells out

For the past couple of weeks, only the force of habit has been summoning S.U. students to their classes on time. The bells, which used to announce class times, have fallen silent.

An electrician was at work yesterday repairing the bell and clock systems, according to Michael Shreck, director of plant and general services.

The whole system is regulated by a master clock in the Registrar's office.

rotc speaker

Mr. Harold Rood of the Stanford Research Institute in California, will speak on campus Thursday, at 7 p.m. in Pigott Auditorium. His topic is entitled: "The United States vs Soviet Russia and Red China: Its Implications for Us."

Mr. Rood's appearance was announced by Major Corcoran, Director of S.U.'s R.O.T.C. Enrichment Program.

summer jobs

Summer jobs as guides in the Seattle City Light Skagit area are available.

Jobs are open to single males who have completed their second year of college and will be at least 20 years of age by August 1.

Pre-screening of applicants will be done by the S.U. Director of Student Placement. Consideration will be given to voice, appearance and stature. Those selected will then be referred to City Light for final screening and selection.

Interested students should apply to Student Placement office, Bookstore Bldg., Room 110, no later than March 18. Pay will be $499 per month plus room and board.

scholarship

Georgia Riek, senior English education major, has received Kappa Delta Pi's third annual Student-Teaching scholarship.

Georgia, a native of Portland, will receive $350 from the S.U. Eta Alpha chapter of the national professional education honorary.

The money is award on the basis of scholarship, service on campus and need. It is intended to aid those involved in full-day student teaching.

wine tasting

Intercollegiate Knights will sponsor a wine-tasting party this Friday at 8:30 p.m. in the Chieftain Lounge. Beer will also be served (all you can drink) and live music will be featured from 9 to 12 p.m.

Prices are $3.50 per couple or $2 stag.

tryouts

Final tryouts for Teatro Inigo's late spring production of "Your Own Thing," will be today from 1-3 p.m. at the theatre.

Participants must come prepared to sing both a hard rock number and a ballad. They must also be willing to stay with the show through its July repertory run.

Accompanists will be provided if students cannot bring their own.

BSU Wants Black State U

The need for the establishment of a black university in the state of Washington was the main decision reached at a Black Student Union weekend conference at Western Washington State College in early March.

S.U. BSU president Bobby Davis was acknowledged as "President of all State Black Student movements," according to a recent issue of the Afro-American Journal.

The S.U. black student organization announced yesterday that it has changed its name. It will now be known as SAAME (Students Afro-American Movement for Equality).
